

Untitled [Redacted]: Episode 9

By Nicholas Tran

DISEMBODIED VOICE (POLICE COMMISSIONER)

Like it's coming from a tape recorder. Slowly becomes more corrupted as time goes on.

Static County Police Department

Case No. Static

Date: Static static static

Reporting Officer: Static Static

Reported by: Static static

Incident: A fire at static static static static, otherwise known as the old Carpenter's house. The engulfing flame was reported at static by static static.

Uncomfortable Beat.

Detail of Event: Fire lasted from static to static, with the local fire department arriving at static. The Carpenter House was almost completely burned away.

Fire was determined to have originated in the kitchen area from a gas leak and spread along the bottom floor. At static, the bearing on the first floor gave way and the second floor and attic collapsed on the first floor, adding more fuel to the flame. Basement area seems to have been relatively insulated from the fire.

One body was found in the kitchen area. Dental records identified the body as static static. Autopsy report suggests static was under the influence of psycho-hallucinogenic drugs. Static most likely caused the fire due to an errant spark lighting the gas leak. Autopsy further identifies possible self-harm injuries on the body, see report by county examiner.

The only personal object that was recoverable from the wreckage was a thick book written in Latin. It is currently being kept in static and will be donated to the local library after further examination.

Some furniture was found to be untouched by the fire, but seems to have been broken, nonetheless. It is unknown what is the cause, but it is suspected that deterioration over time and the heat caused this phenomenon.

Uncomfortable Beat.

Actions Taken: Officer static static and static static arrived at the scene at static. Following the putting out of the fire, the officers investigated the wreckage of the fire, discovered the burnt body of static, and moved it for autopsy.

A sweep of the wreckage was done to determine source of the fire and remove any valuables that could be salvaged. The basement was briefly investigated, but it seems to be in the same state as it was found in during case number static.

Following the identification of the body, the static family was reached out to. They have yet to pick up the body from the morgue.

The owner of the land was investigated, and it seems like the land's owner, static static, has also died due to mysterious causes recently, see case number static. The city has reclaimed the land under static static. It will be sold at an upcoming auction. Funds will be donated to the local DARE programs.

Summary: Accidental fire caused by static static, only one casualty. House fully razed, though basement remains relatively unscathed. The family of static static has been contacted and the body awaits retrieval. The land has been reclaimed by the city and will be sold at auction.

Static. An uncomfortably long beat.

DISTORTED VOICE

Backwards

Where did the other body go?